Allied Commission Ordered To Use Troops to Suppress Pole Uprising in Silesia

Aggressive Action and Boundary Settlement Urged in Note.

U. S. TO SIT WITH ALLIES

President Harding Replies Favorably to Request and Orders That Ambassador to London Meet With Supreme Council, Not to Stand Aloof.

By Associated Press.
PARIS, May 7.—The Allies have sent to the Allied commission in Upper Silesia an urgent request to act energetically in the suppression of the uprising there, using Allied troops if necessary.

They also urge that the commission act as quickly as possible on the settlement of the boundaries in this area as a result of the plebiscite, this question not having been considered at the London session of the Supreme Council because the commission, it is stated there, had not been able to reach an agreement.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Instructions to Ambassador Wallace at Paris and Royland W. Boyden to resume their posts as unofficial observers for the American government at the conference of ambassadors and reparations commission, respectively, were prepared today at the State Department. This is in conformity with the decision President Harding announced yesterday to have American representation on the international councils overseas dealing with problems growing out of the war.

George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, who is to sit with the Allied Supreme Council as the representative of the President, will receive his instructions on his arrival at London next week. No participation in the proceedings of the council will be less definite than that of the other American representatives, not, it was explained, because of any desire by the United States to restrict its work but because of the differences in the power given their representatives by other governments.

The decision of the administration to accept the invitation of the Allied supreme council to send American representatives to the Allied council, not to the Senate discussion today. Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, declaring that in sending the invitation, the Allies were "merely rubbing salt in the American government for deserting them."

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.—President Harding accepted yesterday the invitation of the Allied supreme council that the United States be represented at the meetings of that body as well as those of the conference of ambassadors and the reparations commission.

George Harvey, newly appointed ambassador to Great Britain, will sit with the supreme council and take part as the representative of the President of the United States in the deliberations of that body. Representatives of the conference of ambassadors, the reparations commission, will be unofficial. The ambassador to France will be the observer on the former and Roland W. Boyden will sit in an unofficial capacity on the latter.

Decision to accept the council's invitation was reached at the regular cabinet meeting and formal announcement of it was made at the White House. Soon afterward, the text of the American reply to the invitation was made public at the State Department. It follows:

"The government of the United States has received through the British ambassador, the courteous communication in which you state that, with the unanimous concurrence of the powers represented at the Allied conference in London, you are to inquire whether this government is disposed to be represented in the future as it was in the past, at the Allied conferences, at the conference of ambassadors in Paris, and on the reparations commission."

"The government of the United States, while maintaining the traditional policy of abstention from participation in matters of distinctly European concern, is deeply interested in the proper economic adjustments and the just settlement of the matters of world wide importance which are under discussion in the conference, and desires helpfully to cooperate in the deliberation upon these questions."

"The government of the United States notes with pleasure your expression of the belief of the representatives of the Allied governments assembled in London that American cooperation in the settlement of the great international questions growing out of the world war, will be of material assistance."

The answer of the American Government was in reply to a formal invitation presented at the State Department yesterday by Sir Auckland Hood, the British Ambassador.

Foreign War Men Discuss Program For Memorial Day

At a meeting of the Veterans of Foreign War, held in the new quarters in West Crawford avenue last night, plans for the decoration of soldiers' graves and for the remainder of the Memorial Day exercises were completed. Following the business session there was a Dutch lunch and several talks were given.

As has been the custom of Foreign Veterans for years, the organization will have a firing squad at the cemetery. The time of march will be from city hall to Chestnut Hill cemetery, thence to St. Joseph's cemetery and finally to Hill Grove cemetery where the exercises will be concluded with Memorial Day addresses.

The committee in charge desires that all former soldiers turn out but reminds the public that it is not alone soldiers' day; that it is one on which the hero dead of the nation should be remembered and tribute paid to those who have sacrificed their all for the greatest nation on earth.

A committee was appointed to hold a conference with William F. Kurtz Post No. 104, G. A. R. and Milton L. Bishop Post 301, The American Legion, with a view to arranging a joint reunion and picnic some time next month.

Motion Pictures In Place of Text Books, Edison Plan

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 7.—Substitution of motion pictures for books for the elementary schools would in 20 years bring about an advance of 10 centuries in civilization, Thomas A. Edison declared here today. The scientist declared present primary school systems are poor and unattractive to children.

"The remedy," he said, "is to eliminate boring books and teach with motion pictures. This is a more vivid, more compelling method of holding the child's attention."

Mr. Edison's criticism of primary schools was given to qualify a previous statement that after a series of examinations of college men applicable for positions in his plant he had found them amazingly ignorant. The fault, he said, was not in the college but in that their early education was poor.

SONG FESTIVAL SURPASSES ANY YET GIVEN HERE

Chorus Work and Dances of Grade Children Declared Nearly Perfect.

TO BE REPEATED TONIGHT

Students of the third to sixth grade, inclusive, of the Connellsville public schools last night staged their annual song festival and it was one of the best ever given. In fact, the affair this year exceeded anything of the kind ever presented here.

Before a packed auditorium the children performed, never making a slip, such a thing as stage fright probably never entering their minds. The program consisted of vocal numbers by choruses of vocal numbers and also of folk dances and drills. These were well executed, and in some instances the ability of the little performers to move with grace and precision was surprising.

The event was prepared under the general direction of Miss Mary Helin Giant, supervisor of music in the grade schools. She was assisted by the teachers of the various rooms who have drilled their classes for weeks in the parts they were to play. Last night teachers of the first and second grades, although they had no pupils in the affair, assisted in handling the 1,000 or more children who participated.

The curtain rose on a chorus composed of the combined sixth grades. Five numbers were sung by this assemblage and the harmony of the voices was perfect. Although the different schools of the city the chorus was so drilled that the voices blended beautifully.

This was followed by the "Dance of Greeting," a Danish step. It was put on by the fourth grades of the Crawford school. The participants were drilled by Misses Myra Conway and Anna Laffer, their teachers. The "Virginia Reel," by the third grades, South Side, was a rather difficult piece but it was well executed by the young folks. Misses Audith Bizler and Martha Kauffman instructed the dancers.

Miss Mary Porter and Miss Susan Hicks were in charge of the group that did the "Shoemaker's Dance," a Danish reel. The students were of the fourth grade of the Cameron school.

The combined third grades, another chorus of about 300 voices, were grouped for four vocal numbers, directed by Miss Giant.

A difficult dance, that was executed with much grace and precision, was the Maypole dance. It was a very pretty spectacle, about 15 girls of the fourth grade on the South Side park, including Misses Wynne and Emma Harrigan, Lillian Edmonds and Eula Knappenger drilled the students in the dance.

The "Jolly Boys" created many laughs with their antics. It was the one number composed wholly of boys and they showed their delight by grinning from ear to ear as they sang their "Jolly Boy Song." The boys were from the fourth grade, Third ward. The third grade girls of the Third ward executed a pretty drill, each carrying a hoop covered with roses. Misses Rae Hawk and Miss Mae Gilmore worked that number out. "I See You," another girl drill, was something different. It was also presented by the girls of the third grade, Third ward.

The fifth grade girls of the Second ward put on a flag drill. They had been instructed in this by Misses Beasly and Misses Beasly.

Stomach Not A Necessity, Cancer Cured

By Associated Press.

PARIS, May 7.—That the stomach is a superfluous organ is the startling discovery of Dr. Victor Pauchet, reported to the Academy of Medicine.

After affirming that he has successfully removed the stomach from a woman 50 years old, who has continued to live happily in perfect health, he reports that the operation also cured her of cancer.

"The stomach's action is purely preliminary," said Dr. Pauchet. "The mechanism for the vital part of the digestion is in the small intestine, with the intervention of the pancreas, juice and the bile. Therefore, providing the patient follows a light diet, the stomach can be dispensed with advantageously."

What became of the lost Black plan is a mystery. Made out by the general board, guarded with the greatest care, handed by the proper authorities, it was carried into effect and then it vanished utterly.

The discovery that one of our secret naval plans was missing came when it was too late to have any effect on the situation. But that did not prevent the newspapers making the most of the sensation, especially such as for political reasons, had it in for the navy department.

They would never have heard it was missing, nor would we have known it was missing, had we not looked it up for the purpose of proving to certain clamorous critics that we had not gone to war without plans, a plan, and as we supposed, had been fled away with thousands of other documents for purposes of record. But there we were wrong. The plan had not been fled away, nor could any trace of it be found. To this day it has not been found.

And it was an important plan—at the time it was used. It was a plan of vital importance.

CINCINNATI, May 7.—Establishment of local wage conferences or adjustment boards throughout the country to prevent unnecessary strikes and lockouts in the building industries was urged today by the executive council of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor in session here.

On the other hand many of the smaller townships show an increase over last year. The decrease in many cases was caused by the mining of coal.

Stopping A Dangerous Tendency

Pittsburgh Dispatch.

What the President denounces as the most "dangerous tendency" in the administration of governmental departments, the habit of exceeding the appropriations made by Congress, and asking for money to pay these additional expenditures in deficiency appropriation bills, is one of the effects of "waste-time extravagance." There is no deficiency appropriation before but never on the scale of the present when these excess expenditures amount to more than $15,000,000, or one-fifth of the whole cost of government before the war. This total is for deficiency bills already before Congress and will, the President says, be greatly exceeded when the full total is in.

Deficiency appropriations for unforeseen expenditures or costs have always been provided for, but the bulk of the present deficiencies is for new and additional expenditures that should not have been attempted by bureaus and departments without Congressional appropriation in advance.
In fact, the tendency inherited from the "waste-time" habits has been to run wild on the theory that the money would always be forthcoming. The President has rendered a signal public service in calling attention to this department waste and through them upon their bureau chiefs that this reckless extravagance must stop forthwith and that they must live within the limits of the regular appropriations approved by Congress.

No Substitute For Newspaper Advertising

Fourth Edition.

The would-be business men who have attempted to find a substitute for newspaper advertising have always busted their heads against a stone wall.

The place of the newspaper in American life has been dramatically challenged and bitterly resisted by publishers of other classes of periodicals; but, along with and immediately following each assault, the daily newspaper has risen to the height of its service and the breadth of its appeal until today it is as indispensable as water or food. One of man's most pronounced yearnings is for news—news from the ends of the world and from the next block—and as the news is scanned, the advertisements come in for their share of attention.

Valuable among the American institutions bequeathed us by our freedom-loving ancestors is the newspaper.
Through its daily arrival at the door be greeted with no spoken welcome, and its place in the family circle taken with no more ceremony than attends the setting of the table for dinner, the newspaper is yet the bond of our interest in one another, and the aid in it keep us posted on what is for sale in the world's markets.

It is the chronicle of our average day. The news it brings is "gooder" unmixed blessing nor unalloyed woe.
The unions it expresses help to mould our own.

The confident appearance of a message in the advertising columns of a big newspaper will bring results in increased prestige and regular volume of business.

To try to discover a substitute for newspaper advertising is anybody's privilege; but why not try something that can be put across?

Would You Know a Real War?

Los Angeles Times.

A man who had married 11 wives in three years proved to be a deserter from both the Army and the Navy. A man who can accumulate 11 wives in that time has no business connecting with a war, anywhere. How would he know a war when he saw one?

"Enthusiasm is the sincerest flattery."

Toussaint Post.

We fancy that every thinking officer who is now analyzing the President's use of the word "normality" in his application.

Herb Beck is Fall.

Citizen-Crowley of the West Side is suffering from an injury to his back suffered last week when he slipped and fell on an iron collar delivery in West Crawford avenue. He worked several days this week but Thursday he was forced to go to a physician. He is able to be about with the assistance of a cane.

MOTHERS' DAY

Leader, gentle, brave and true,
Leading us whatever we do,
Waiting, watching at the gate,
For the footsteps that are late.

For the footsteps that are late,
For the footsteps that are late,
For the footsteps that are late,
For the footsteps that are late.

Others cheer and turn aside,
Mother welcomes us with pride;
Over-joyful of us, too,
Clorizing in all we do.

First to praise and last to blame,
Love that always stays the same,
Following us wherever we stray—
That is every mother's way.

Not enough for her are flowers,
Her life is so vibrant with ours,
That in all we do and say,
Love that always stays the same.

Suffering when we suffer pain,
Happy when we smile again,
Living with us night and day—
That is every mother's way.

Not enough for her are flowers,
Her life is so vibrant with ours,
That in all we do and say,
Love that always stays the same.

Suffering when we suffer pain,
Happy when we smile again,
Living with us night and day—
That is every mother's way.

Ess A. Shireman How Cuticura Healed Pimples

Larger red pimples came out in waves all over my face and arms. They itched and burned so that I was seldom could sleep at night, and my face looked a sight for a long time. The trouble lasted about three months. A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I found that it was helping me so purchased more, and after using four boxes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed. (Signed) Miss Anna Shireman, Spring Grove, Pa., Dec. 3, 1920.

Cuticura Soap daily and Cuticura Ointment occasionally prevent pimples or other eruptions. They are a pleasure to use, as is also Cuticura's famous "Soothing" fragrance for perfuming the skin.

DISAPPEARANCE OF NAVY'S BLACK PLAN UNSOLVED SECRET

While in the Atlantic was known as the "Black plan," in February, 1917, in its revised and up-to-the-minute form, it dealt, of course, with the probability of war with Germany.

On February 4, the day after Bernstorff was dismissed, the general board had recommended in detail the principal steps to be taken in case of war with the central powers—mobilization of the fleet, naval districts and auxiliary vessels; large increase of navy and marine corps personnel; nets and mines to guard ports and home waters; anti-submarine warfare; armament of merchant ships; and other measures, and "most important, arrangements as soon as possible, plans of cooperation with the naval forces of the allies for the joint protection of trans-Atlantic commerce and for offensive naval operations against the common enemy."

Solution of Problem.
The general war plan was comprehensive, special recommendations had been made as to the various steps we should take. But I wanted also a definite statement as to the strategy and general policy we should pursue upon the declaration of war. These guidelines are called "problems," and on February 10 I addressed this letter to the general board:

To: The General Board.
Subject: Solution of Problem.
1. The department desires the general board to consider the following problem and submit its solution as soon as practicable:

PROBLEM.
General Situation—Conditions as at present except that war with Germany is declared.

Special Situation—The allies do not desire our battleship force at present.

Required—Naval estimate of the situation.

First, as to the grand strategy demanded by the situation.

Second, as to disposition of battleship force.

Third, as to the method of assisting in maintaining communications with Europe, including scheme for cooperation with allies.

Fourth, as to the methods of driving submarines from the sea.

Assume—Mobilization of all naval vessels and possibility of mobilizing merchant vessels as required.

The board made a careful study of the whole situation, and a week later made a report covering all the matters set forth, and sent it to me, with the following note of transmittal:

Problem Is Solved.
General Board, Navy Department
Washington, February 17, 1917.
To: Secretary of the Navy.

Subject: Solution of Problem, Black.

Reference (a) Navy Department Confidential Letter of February 10, 1917.

1. In accordance with reference (a), the general board submits herewith problem and solution based upon the general and special situations described in the navy department's instructions.

CHARLES J. BADGER.
Such care was taken to keep this document from anyone except the secretary and the office of naval operations that, even the general board retained no duplicate of it. After being submitted to me for approval, it was turned over to the chief of naval operations; all plans that had been approved were in their custody. They were familiar with their provisions and drafted the necessary orders for carrying them into effect. But plans were so carefully safeguarded that only those directly concerned were allowed to see them.

And yet, in spite of all our precautions, the document containing the general board's "Solution of Problem, Black," was gone.

The most thorough search failed to find any trace of it.

How long had it been missing? No one could answer.

Not stolen by German spy.

The newspapers hinted that it had been stolen by some German spy. Such was the obvious suspicion. The suggestion that it might have been stolen by some German spy was given no credence in the department. Nothing is so carefully guarded as war plans, and so far as we know the Germans never got hold of any of ours, although early in the war a number of things occurred which made us wonder how much they did know. For example:

Movements of vessels and orders relating thereto were known only to the few officials in the navy department who issued the orders, and to the men on the vessels. Great pains were taken to prevent the Germans from learning about the first destroyers sent over. They sailed under sealed orders, and until he was 50 miles at sea and broke the seal, not even the commander of the flotilla knew his destination.

Yet the day before the division arrived, German submarines, for the first time in months, showed mines all across the entrance to Queenstown, and the German papers printed the news of our destroyers' arrival before it was published in England or America. The latter is more easily accounted for, as it was several days before we announced that they had reached a British port, but the mine laying led many to believe that the enemy had, in some way, learned they were coming.

When our first troop convoys went to Europe they were attacked far out at sea, and Admiral Sims called that it was "practically certain that the enemy knew positions of the first rendezvous and accordingly sent a submarine to intercept before junction with destroyers." Though Sims afterward discounted the idea that the convoys were attacked, he was excited enough about it for the time, for he sent me two cablegrams about it in three days.

German "Doped It Out."
But whatever the Germans might have learned about our ship movements, on the other side, I am confident that they did not get any information from this side of the Atlantic. The navy had control of all radio, every cable message was scanned and even the destroyer and transport captains did not know their destination until they were well out at sea. My own opinion is that the Germans who knew of General Pershing's arrival in England, which occurred the day after our first convoys sailed, inferred that troops were being dispatched and merely "doped out" the probable route. The mine laying at Queenstown was as likely as not, simply a coincidence.

And I am satisfied in my own mind that the missing plan, the "Problem Solution, Black," will yet be found carefully—too carefully—hidden away in the navy department. I have never believed it was stolen, or that it in any way fell into German hands.

The explanation of its vanishing, I think, will be found to be quite simple, and will show that it was due to an over-anxiety to preserve the plan in absolute secrecy.

As I have said, but one copy was made of it. It was probably given into the care of Captain Volney Chase, chief assistant to Admiral Benson, and a man to whom matters of the utmost importance were frequently committed. Captain Chase was an exceedingly able and unsparking devoted officer. It is not unlikely that he put the "Black plan" problem away in some secret drawer or cabinet, confiding in no one as to its whereabouts.

'Look Secret to Grave.'
Then, in June, 1917, worn out with almost ceaseless work, he died—died suddenly. So far as we know, the "Black plan" problem was never seen by any one after the death of Captain Chase. He probably took the secret of its hiding place with him. Certainly no enemy learned it as long as it was locked in his brain.

One of our latest destroyers is named after him—the "Chase." He merited the honor, and I was glad to pay that tribute to his memory.

(Today's article of this series in the Courier will tell of "Pershing's" supreme faith in the ability of American soldiers to turn the tide of the war in favor of the Allies.)

"GOOD REFERENCES"—A First National picture presenting Constance Talmadge, as Jobless Mary, who takes her references, gets a million dollar bond ticket, beats a pig at his own game, is the feature attraction today. Monday and Tuesday Mabel Normand in "What Happened to Rose" will be shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"A WESTERN ADVENTURE"—Starring William Fairbanks is today's feature attraction. A stunt never before attempted in moving pictures, and we don't if it will ever be attempted again, is successfully put over in this picture. In the stunt three people were injured, an aeroplane wrecked and a horse killed. Monday and Tuesday Pauline Frederick will be seen in "The Mistress of Shenstone."

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE PLUNGER"—A William Fox drama featuring George Walsh is the leading attraction today. An unusual day. —Adv.
